Hospital thanks Norton Radstock College Students for Spring Fair Donation

The Royal National Hospital for Rheumatic Diseases NHS Foundation Trust in Bath, also known as the Min, has thanked Norton Radstock College students for donating some of the proceeds from their Spring Fair to the hospital.

The hospital as well as the Teenage Cancer Trust and Norton Radstock College's Student Hardship Fund has received £286 following the second highly successful Spring Fair held on the Radstock College campus.

At a brief ceremony, Dr Nick Hall and Joanne Hunt, representing the Min received a cheque from Norton Radstock College principal, Shirley Arayan. The money will support projects to enhance and improve the patient environment or to help purchase specialist equipment.

Health and social care students, who played a major role in the success of the fair by organising stalls and attractions, attended the presentation.

The four-hour Spring Fair was the second organised by the College and attracted hundreds of visitors from all over the area. Although the fair was a free event, money raised at sideshows and stalls raised more than £850, which was shared between the College's three chosen causes.
